

Ability to Identify Stubs within Result Lists

At the request of customers, we are adding specific wording to Result List entries and KeyCite Canada results that clearly identifies documents for which we do not have full- text.

For many decisions that are older or otherwise outside its scope of coverage, Westlaw Canada does not have the full text of the decision, but does have KeyCite results or Abridgment Digests for it. In order to facilitate finding or keyciting these decisions by name, we have created placeholders for these– “stub documents” – and included them in our case law database.

Although the stub documents themselves have explanatory language on them, they are not easily distinguishable on result lists from full text decisions. Effective in February, a note stating that “This document is not available on Westlaw Canada” will appear on each stub entry in any result list.
