The Annotated Patent Act, by Bruce Stratton of Dimock Stratton LLP is now available on IPSource. This annotation examines the provisions of the Patent Act in context to explain the purpose and function of each in respect of the obtaining and enforcement of patent rights. Every section is reviewed within the broader scheme of the legislation as a whole as well as the specific issues it raises. Leading cases are discussed including a succinct summary of the pertinent facts where they will aid the reader's understanding of the legal principles involved. Current and historical versions of the Act are provided as well as related legislation, regulation and rules.

Each section of the Act is reproduced in full, including a statement as to its currency. The significance of the section is then analyzed in paragraphs dealing with

- All Related Sections and Related Rules – gathered for ease of reference.
- The Legislative History of the provision is discussed as it relates to the development of the law of patents as a whole, and upon the specific issues dealt with by the provision.
- The author's Commentary upon the section (and its subsections) in terms of:
 - The purpose and function of the section within the context of the act as a whole
 - Specific issues that are raised in respect of both the obtaining and enforcement of patent rights.
 - Uniquely, where relevant, specific facts of case law are summarized.
